Benediction

Do we know what it is to work for Christ? If we do, let us take courage, and work on. What greater encouragement can we desire than we see in Matthew 26:1-13? We may be laughed at and ridiculed by the world. Our motives may be misunderstood. Our conduct may be misrepresented. Our sacrifices for Christ's sake may be called "waste,"--waste of time, waste of money, waste of strength. Let none of these things move us. The eye of Him who sat in Simon's house in Bethany is upon us. He notes all we do, and is well-pleased. Let us be "steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the Lord's work, because we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord." (1 Cor. 15:58.) - J.C. Ryle

Mike & Maggie Brown have expressed their desire to unite with Crosspoint Fellowship. They have submitted membership applications and have been interviewed by the Elder. For congregational viewing, their applications are located on the side table in the sanctuary. Upon congregational approval on Aug 3, they will be received into full covenant fellowship.

The following is an excerpt from J.C. Ryle on today's sermon text, found in Matthew 26:1-13:

"...we see in this incident a blessed foretaste of things that will yet take place in the day of judgment. In that great day no honor done to Christ on earth shall be found to have been forgotten. The speeches of parliamentary orators, the exploits of warriors, the works of poets and painters, shall not be mentioned in that day. But the least work that the weakest Christian woman has done for Christ, or His members, shall be found written in a book of everlasting remembrance. Not a single kind word or deed, not a cup of cold water, or a box of ointment, shall be omitted from the record. Silver and gold she may have had none--rank, power, and influence she may not have possessed--but if she loved Christ, and confessed Christ, and worked for Christ, her memorial shall be found on high. She shall be commended before assembled worlds."
